Requirements
Experience on installation, maintenance, modifications and repairs of air-conditioning, ventilation and other related control systems. Driving licence is an asset.

In Malta air-conditioning technicians must have the Local Journeyman's Certificate (HVAC) and Gas Handling Certification. In our daily activities, we normally adopt the buddy system, whereby each team is formed of two technicians, one being a charge hand and the other being a helping hand.

All chargehand must have this at hand as this is a legal requirement. We will however, fully support and sponsor any employees that are willing to take this course and get the needed certification. Once attained, the helping hand getting the certificate will be promoted to chargehand at once.

Training provided
Employees are provided all necessary health and safety training and are additionally provided specific training associated to the occupied position. We are also willing to support and further train any employees that are willing to improve further and grow in their career.

Any assistance with accommodation/relocation
We will support in relocating and finding suitable accommodation based on the needs of the employee.

Any other benefits
All employees will be provided with all necessary tools, uniforms and personal protective gear. The charge hand is also provided with a company mobile and van of which all related costs are incurred by the company. We also offer a very advantageous scheme to our employees, in which the van can be used during non-working days and hours. In such cases, the company sponsors all the related insurance costs and also most of the running costs. Finally, to ensure peace of mind, the company also offers a free health insurance to all employees.

Salary
The selected candidate shall be given an attractive remuneration package that will be discussed during the interview. The starting gross salary for this role normally starts at 15,000 Euro/year for a helping hand and 19,000 Euro/year for a charge hand. In case of need, any additional hours outside the normal working hours, will be paid at one and a half times the hourly rate during the week and on Saturdays; and at double rate during Sundays and Public Holidays. This salary will increase based on experience and performance.

How will the interviews be held

The first interview can be held via Skype or other similar means of communication.
